

A REPORT ON STRUCTURE UNEMPLOYMENT

STOP EXCESSIVE COMPETITION

COMPETITION DOES NOT BRING HOPE

2021 - 2022

Stop excessive competition

Is our competition meaningful?

What brings about excessive competition?

What is the relationship between excessive competition and structure unemployment ?

A long time ago, there was a village where 100 people lived. This village is dominated by agriculture, everyone is a farmer, they have the same job and the same income.

With the great harvest of agriculture, there is no need for so many farmers on the farm. So twenty people went to other professions, such as managers and doctors and so on. Everyone began to have a division of labor, and their incomes were also different, But in general, everyone still has a stable job.

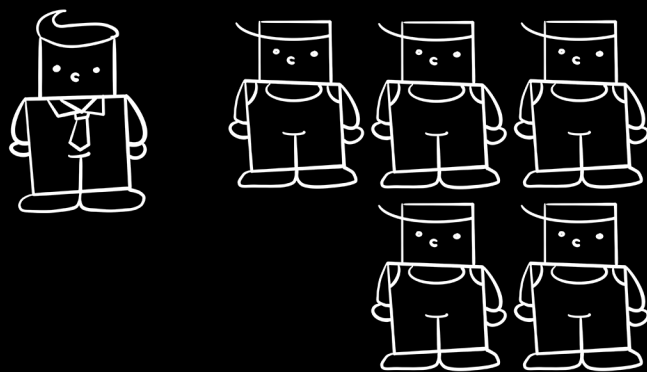

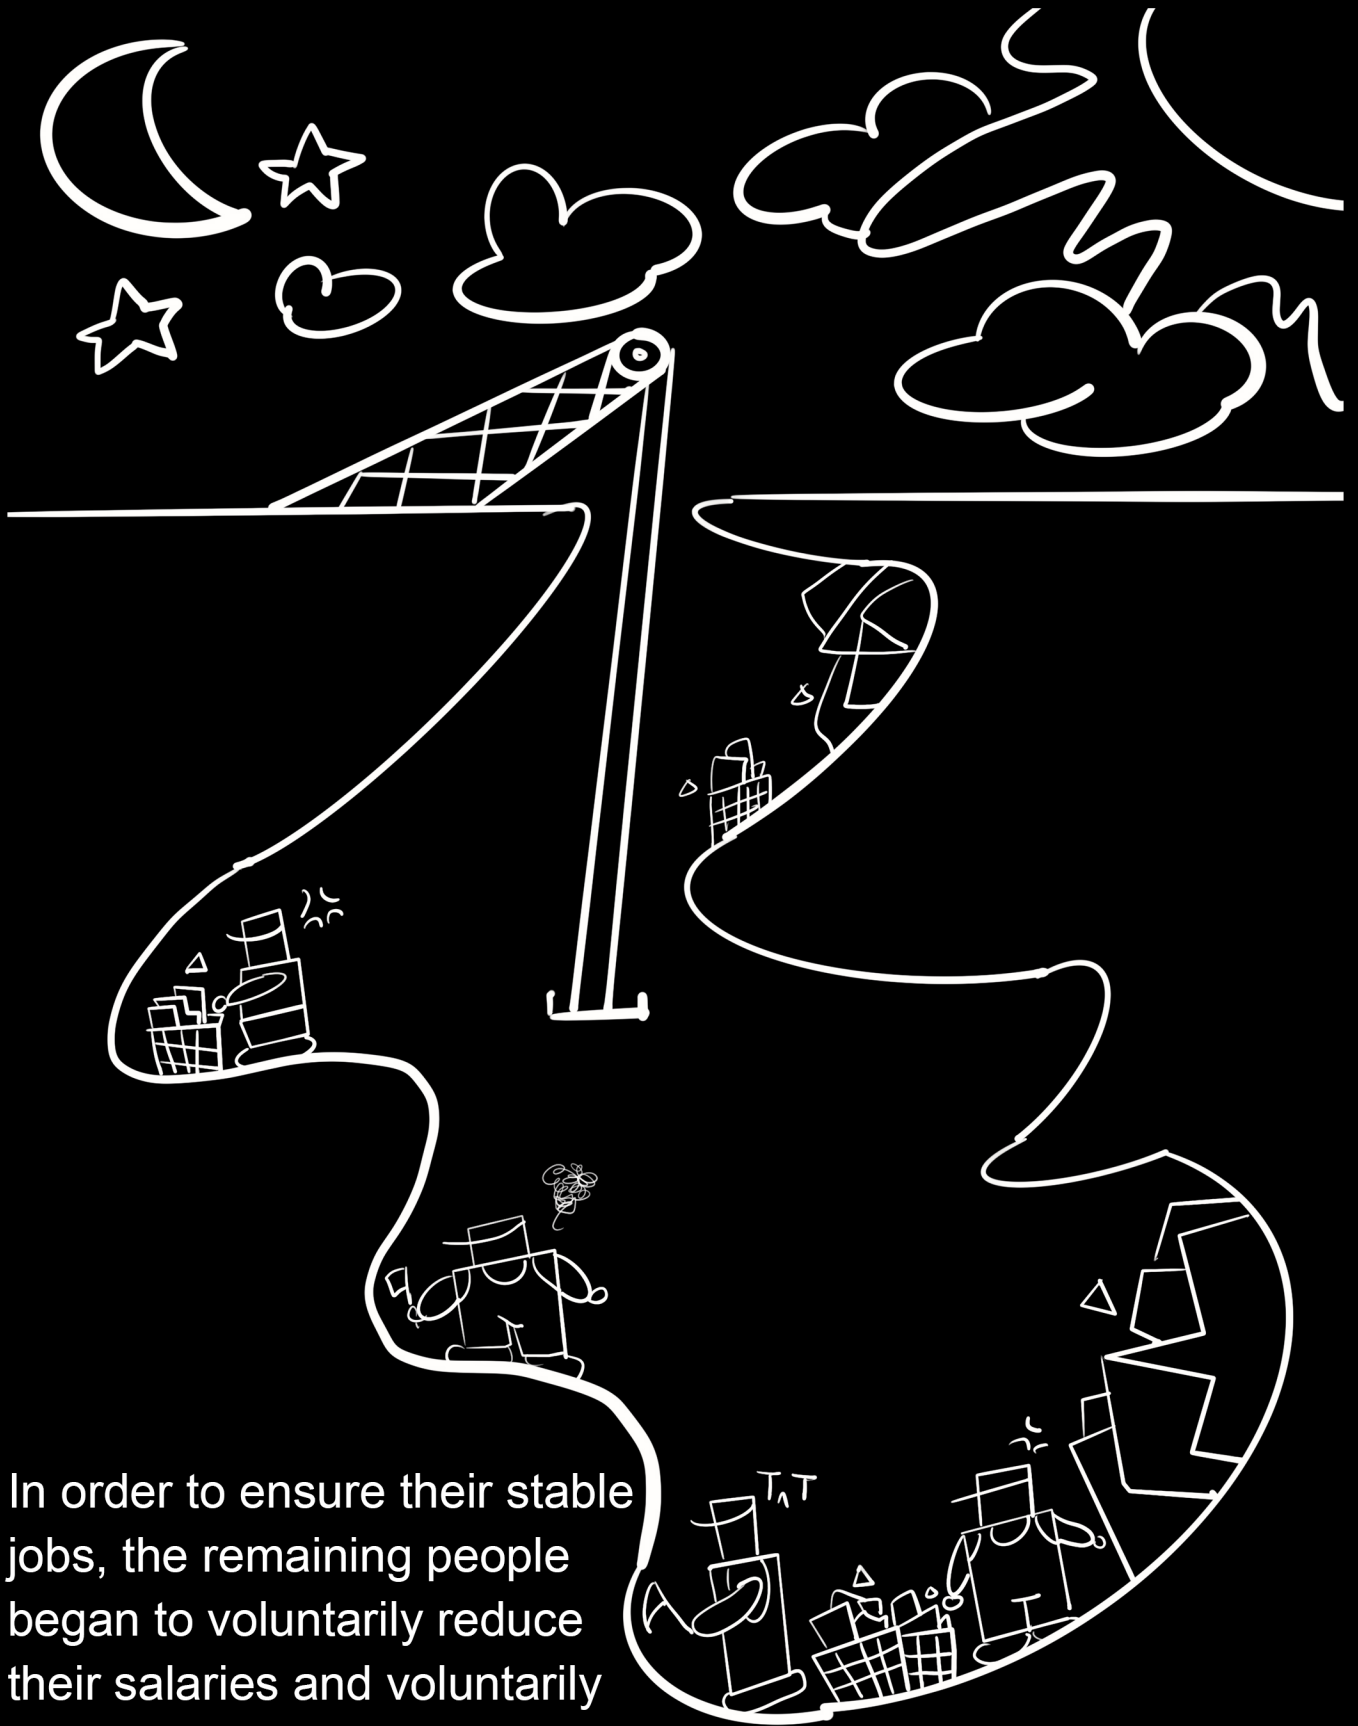

Later, the village continued to develop and gradually formed a small town. The arrival of machines has continuously improved the work efficiency, The work that could be done by many people can now be done by only one person. So twenty workers lost their jobs.

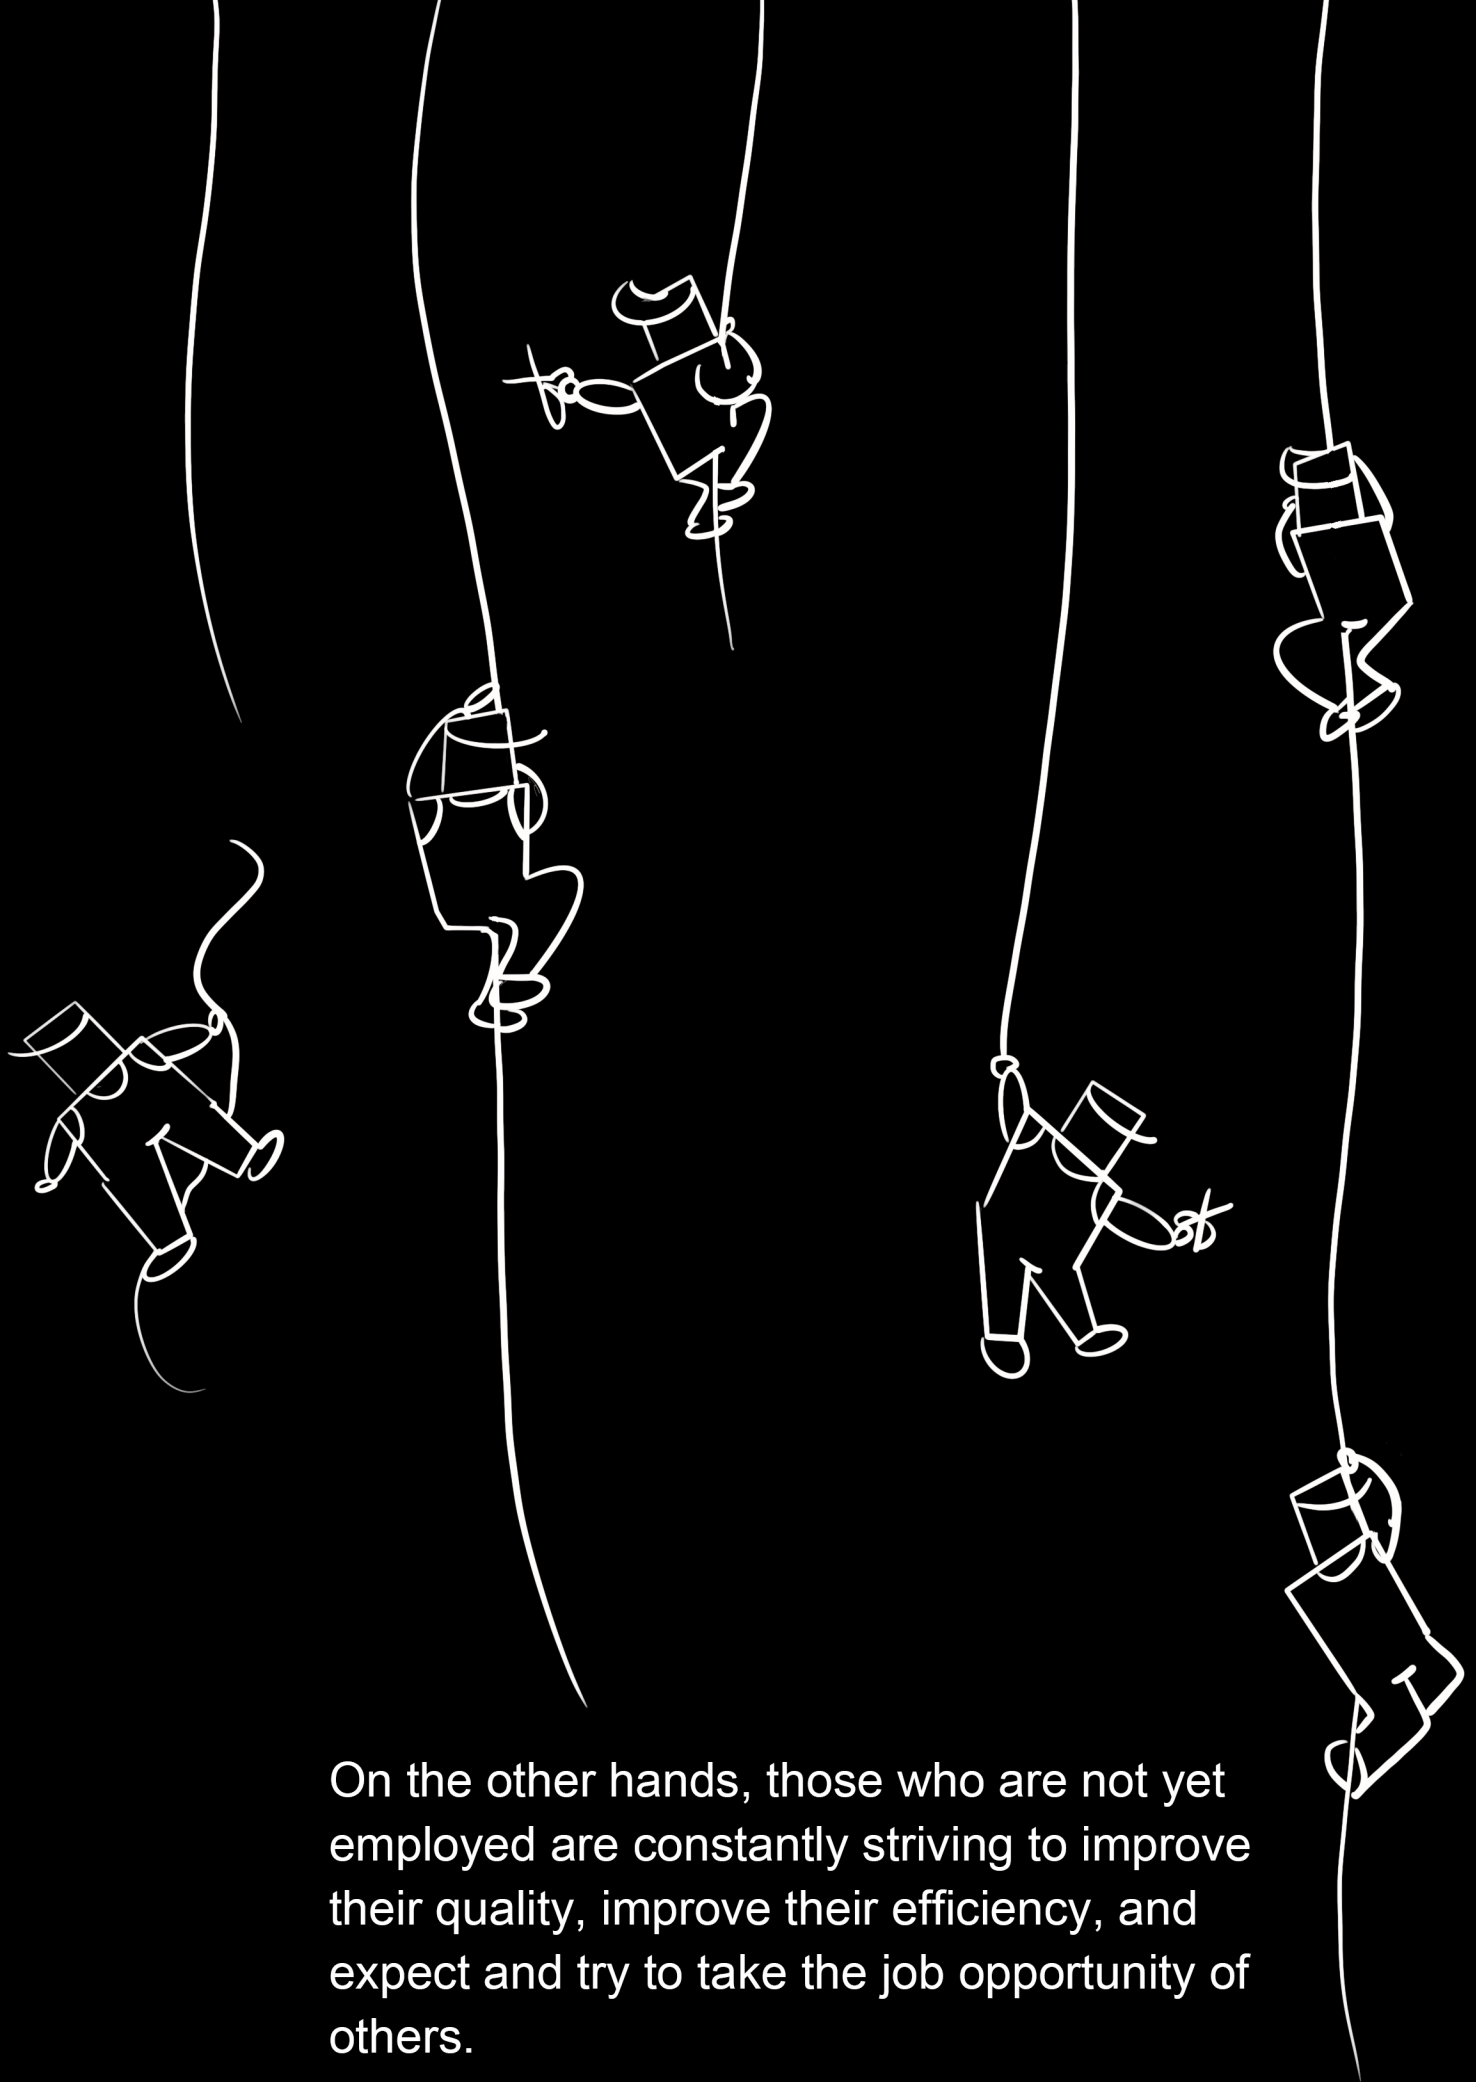

Because of the loss of twenty workers, the remaining workers do not need so many managers and doctors. Five more people in technical management lost their jobs.

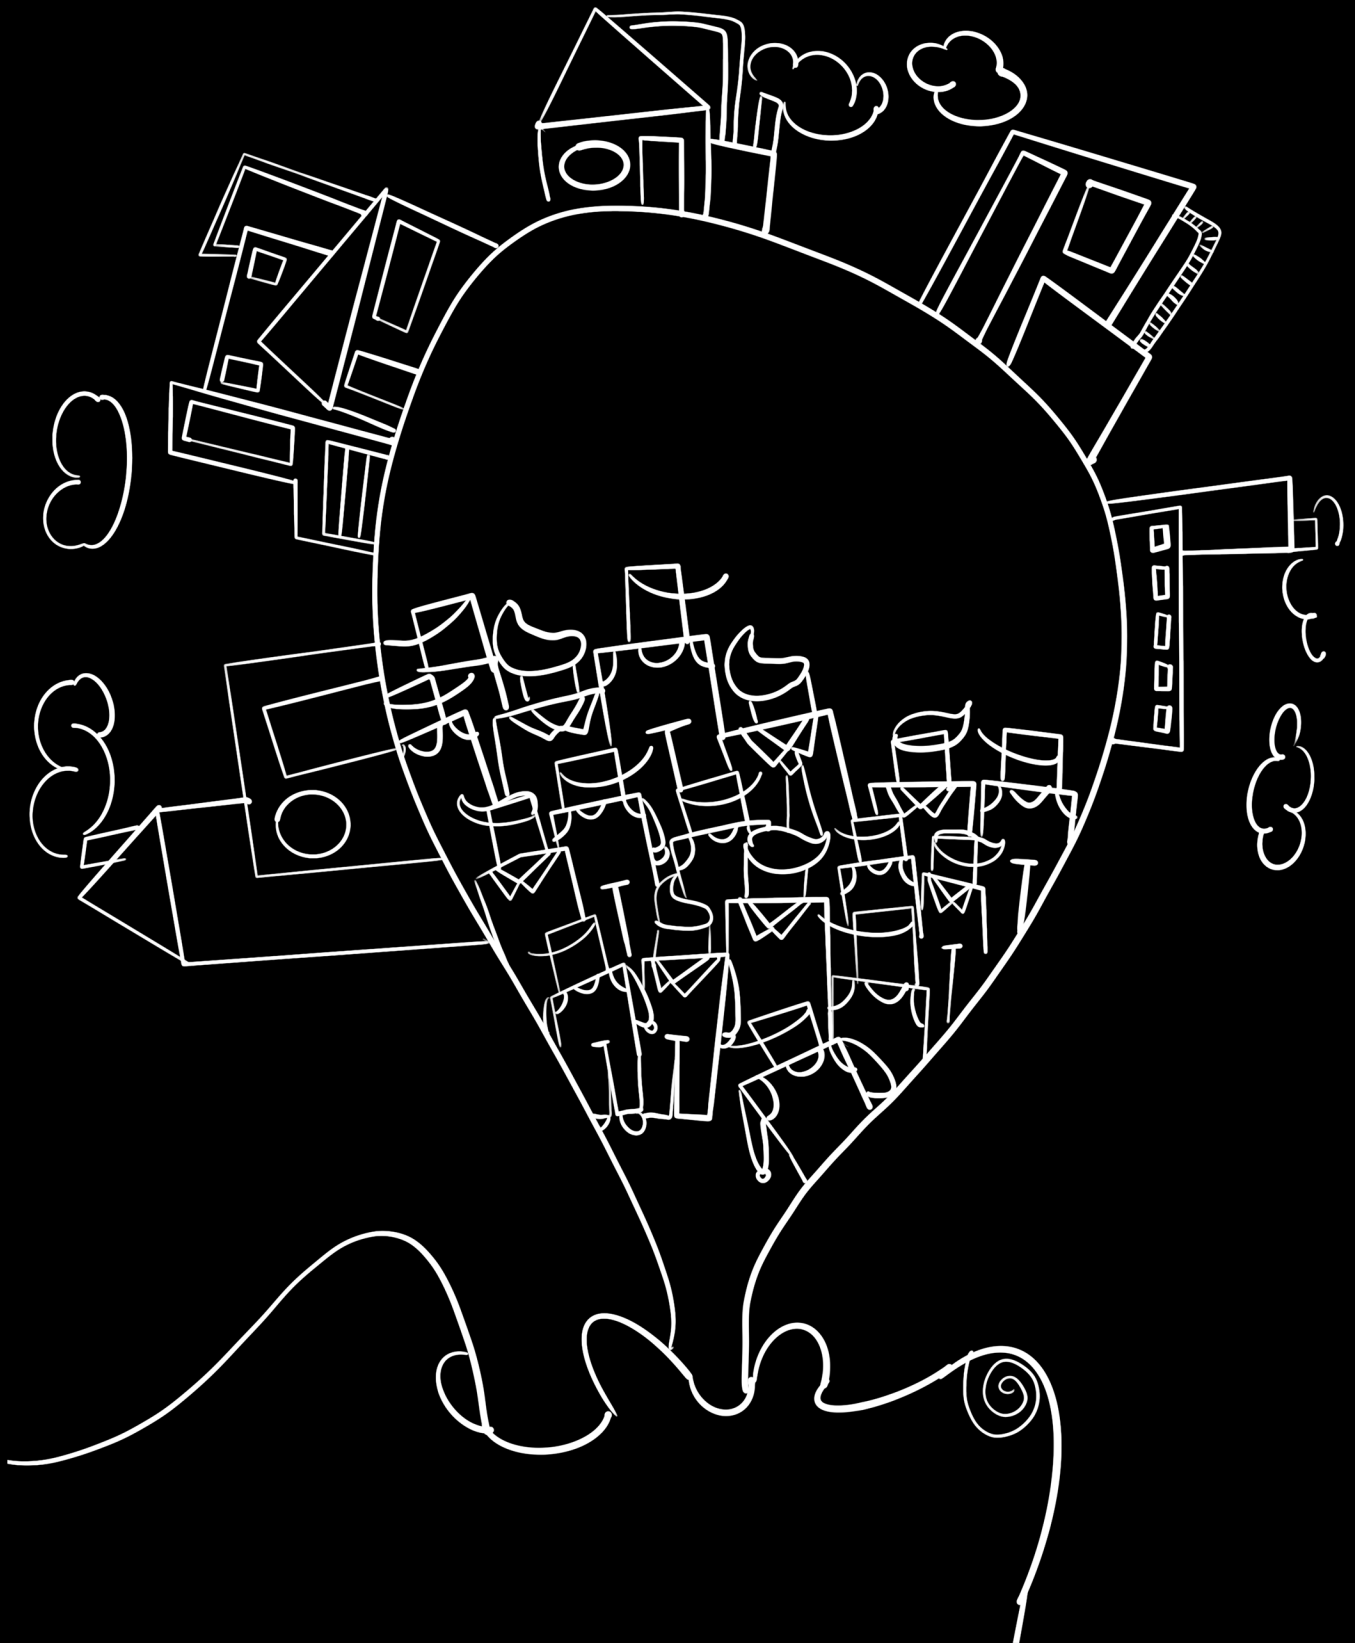

In order to ensure their stable jobs, the remaining people began to voluntarily reduce their salaries and voluntarily increase their working hours, Everyone is complaining about the status quo.

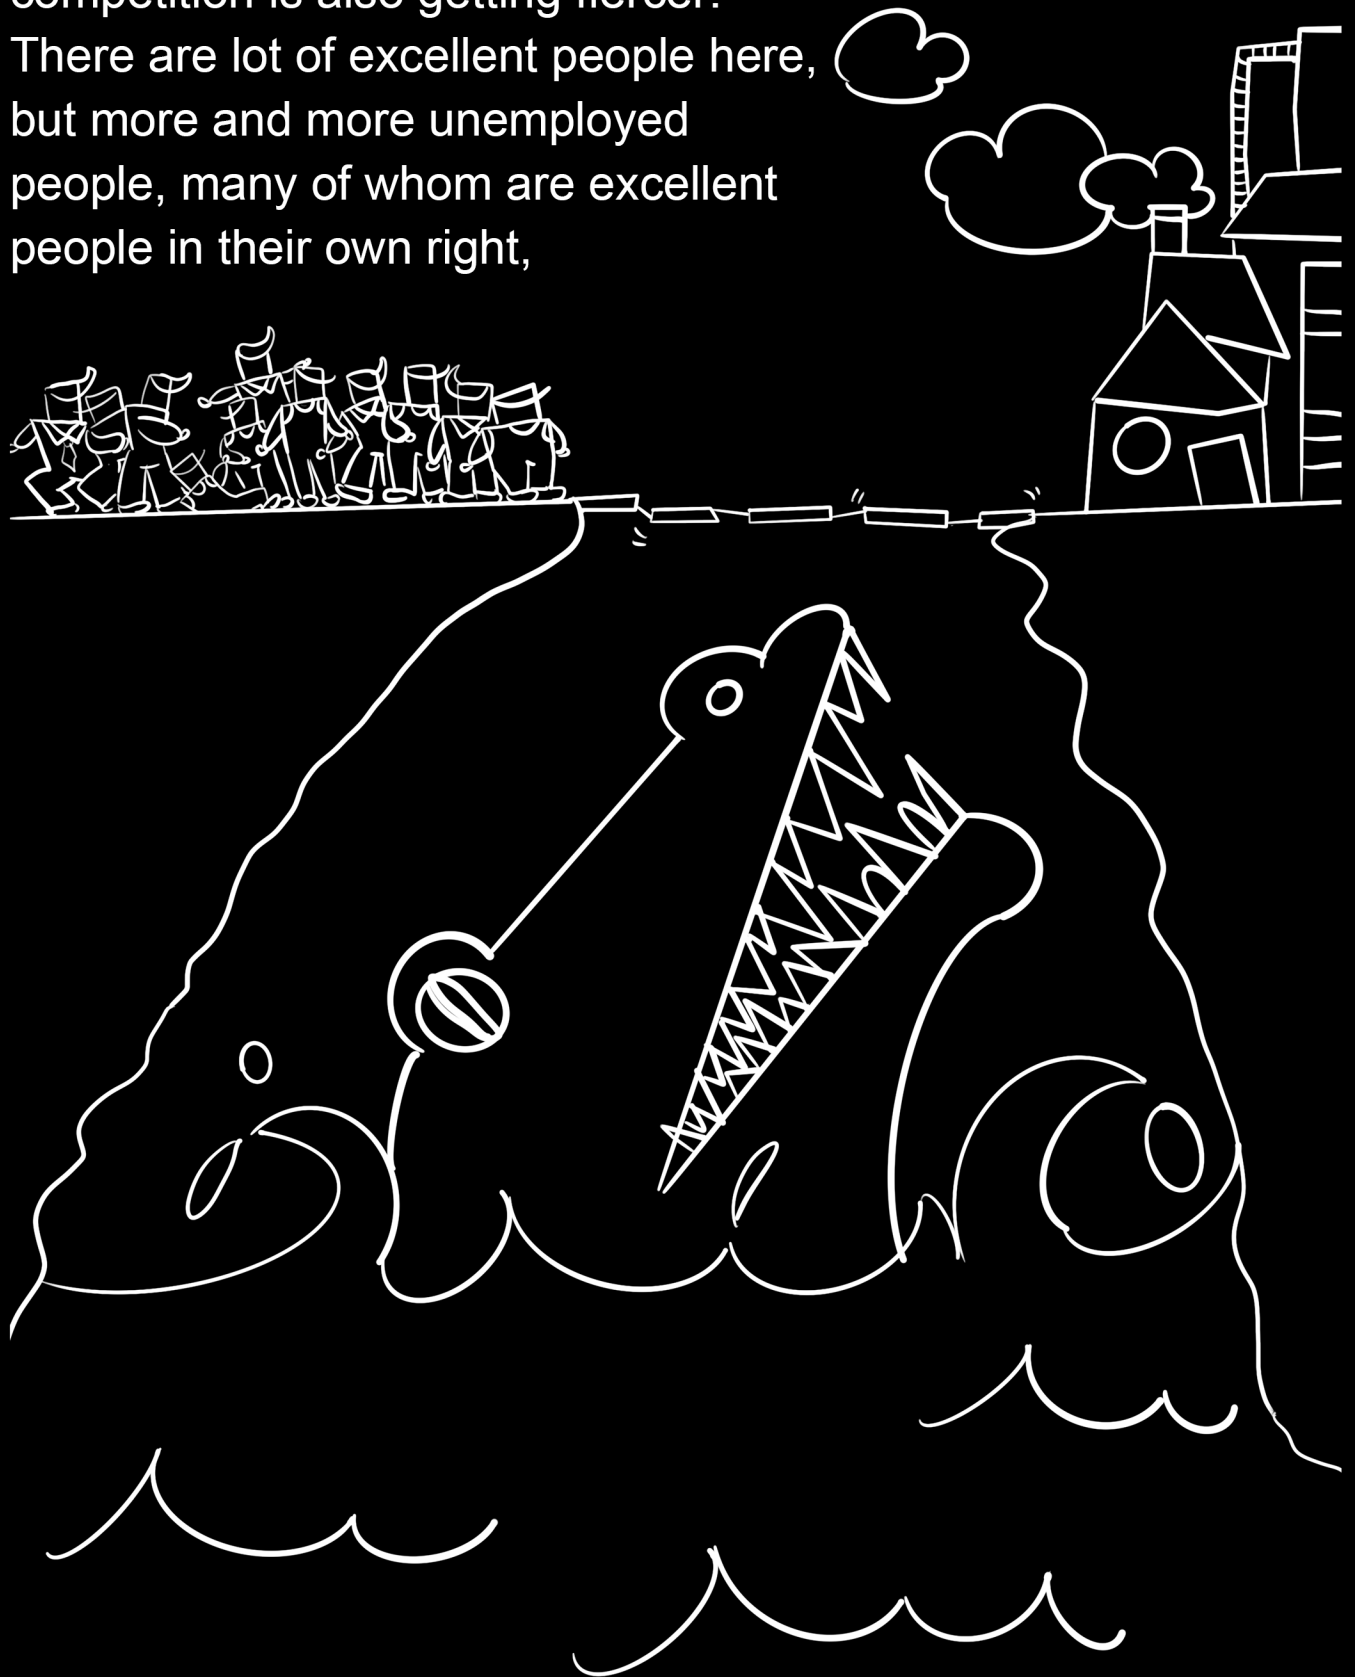

On the other hands, those who are not yet employed are constantly striving to improve their quality, improve their efficiency, and expect and try to take the job opportunity of others.

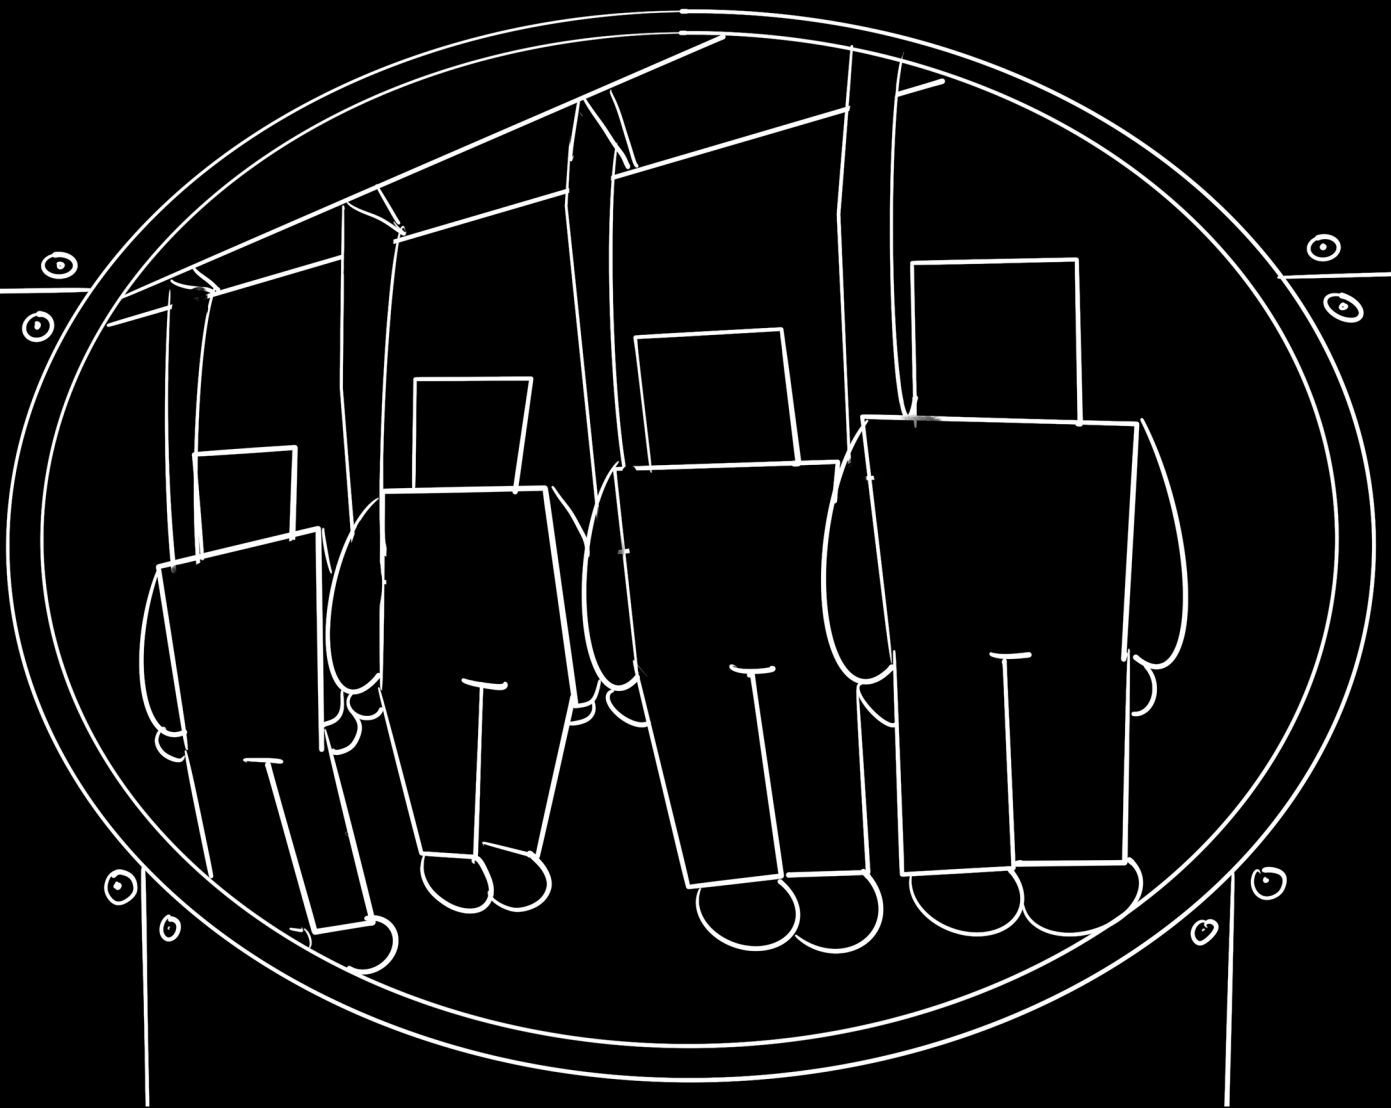

Later, the economy of this town got better and better, and more and more people wanted to come here to gain wealth, and it became a well-known metropolis.

Although the city is getting bigger, the competition is also getting fiercer.

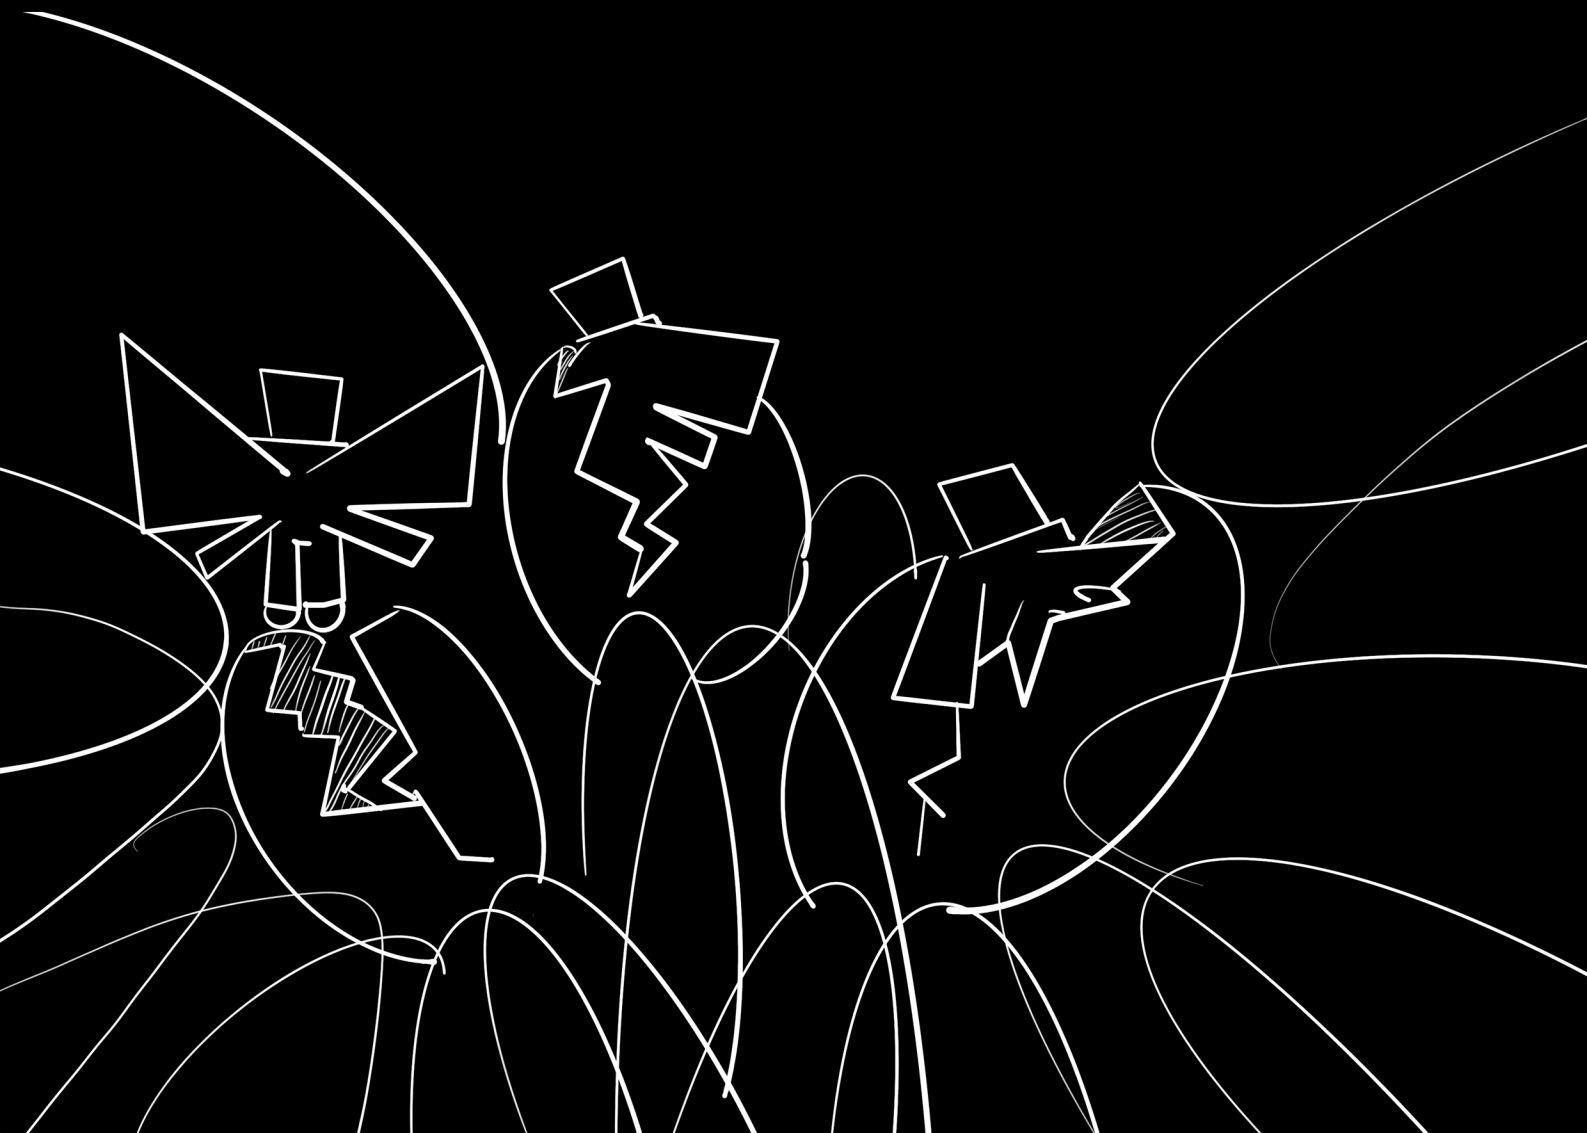

There are lot of excellent people here, but more and more unemployed people, many of whom are excellent people in their own right,

And those who are in the workplace also spend every day in an extreme sense of crisis. They can't make mistakes in their work, and they don't get enough rest and satisfactory salary. Later, some people even suffer from anxiety disorders and mental illness.

Eventually, some people can't stand this competitive city anymore in this city. They have no rest, no pay, no opportunity, and no joy either. In the end they chose to flee.

They came to a desolate place and established a small village here to make a living from agriculture.

Now, the story begins again...

Competition Stop excessive